The father has commenced a suit to recover from the company $5,000.

A Mysterious Case.—On the pight of the 5th a young man about twenty years of age was discovered in the street by the police in an unconscious condition, as supposed, from liquor. He was re-moved to the station-house and placed in one of the cells, where he remained until yesterday still uncon-scious. It is now suspected that he has been foully dealt with, but no explanation has yet been ar-

SERIOUS AFFRAYS.-Early yesterday morning. shortly before one o'clock, the police discovered a man lying in the street bleeding profusely from several terrible wounds about the face. His nose was nearly severed and one of his eyes well night gouged out. He proved to be Julian P. Gerod, formerly of the police, and according to all accounts was injured as described in a drinking saloon opposite Police Headquarters. The proprietors, however, deny all knowledge of the affair. On Tuesday evening another barroom affray took place in the saloon of dottlieb Kraemer, No. 35 Warti street, between two young rowdles, named Abraham Nen and Ferdinand Schwartz. The proprietor pushed the combatanas out on the sidewalk. After slashing and cutting each other most unmercially they forgot their own trouble and united in an assault on the saloon and smasned tungs generally. They were arrested and are held.

His was the first passenger train caught by the flood, and his statements of scenes witnessed are fruly wonderful. His train was stopped between Camp's Mins and Litchfield by the flood, the water rising thirty-four inches over the track, the cars standing within fifteen feet of the rive, where the water was twenty-live feet deep and running at a learful rate, while in front, and shortly after in the rear, the track was washed away. The train remained in that position from Monday night until Wednesday. The passengers stayed on coard the cars until the flood substated, and then watked to Litchfield, and were forwarded as best they could be, by private conveyances, over hills and mountains and inrough valleys, the streets in some instances being guilled out from one side to the other.

Accident.—On Monday, while some little be were playing with an old gun barrel which they had charged with powder and gravel stones, the charge exploded, and one of them, names Murray, received the contents in his breast, inflicting an ugly and probably fatal wound, and another was so badly burned about the face that he will lose the sight of one eye.

Two young men were in a field at work. One of them, according to his statement, was carried some ten feet in the ar, and landed some distance from the place where he was standing; he was somewhat injured. The other, by clinging to the ground, was injured but slightly. Several persons who were sailing on the pond of the Rimmon Water Company were tossed about in a frightful manner. A house standing in a hollow near the pond and in plain sight of the village, belonging to Mr. J. R. Davis, was injured to the amount of $200 or more. The roof was taken off and carried over the hill some half a mile elistant. Mr. Davis was going from his neuse to his barn, and was more or less bruised, so much so that he was taken to his bed. A barn belonging to Phito bavis, standing near by, was completely demolished. Onthouses were blown down, and large trees, two feet or more in diameter, were whirled from their roots. FINE ARTS IN PARIS.

Fine Arts and Artistic Gossip in the French Capital.

PARIS, June 25, 1869. On closing my last communication to your readers on the exhibition at the Palais de l'Industrie I announced a final correspondence in which the best water colors, engravings and drawings should be noticed. These contributions are remarkably fine this year, and among them a large panel in the drawing section has been dedicated to artists who have illustrated the fables of honest Lafontaine, The witty writer was far from surmising when b wrote them that the dialogues of bipeds and quadrupeds would, two centuries rater, be the delight of great painters and his satire become pastime for their pencils; but so it is. There is nothing Rosa Bonheur so much enjoys as sketching contemplative rabbits sitting on their tails, eager, impetuous hares and long-eared, patient asses, to which she adds a line or two taken from the inimitable fableist. In the same way Gustave Doré enjoys Perrauli's fairy tales and Don Cuixotte.

The following are the artists who have honored Lafontaine this year:-Gerome has sent in the "Da-nubian Peasant," a drawing; Rosa Bonheur, "The Two Bulls and Frog." a water coloring; Meunier, "The Old Woman and Two Maids;" Zo, "The Ass Bearing Relies;" Chapin, "The Young Widow," a remarkable drawing; Brion, "The Pumpkin and Acorn," a water color; Daumier, "The Doctors," a water color; Saal, "The Bear and his Two Companions." a water coloring. Large crowds were con stantly standing around these well-known but evernew subjects: for the tables of Lafontaine in France are taught to children as soon as they can run about, and they are the philosophy of the aged. Chaplin and Daumier have sent in other large works. The latter is called the French Hogarth, and stands in the front rank of aguarellistes. His best this year is intended to caricature a class of people "who know all about paintings," but who cannot in reality distinguish one school from another. He has called this "Amateurs in a Studio." It is most laughable. The other is keener, "Judges at a Court of Assizes. It is a terribly ridiculous and truthful illustration. Chaplin's is a young girl with a mandoline—a production that has all the vigor of an oil painting Anastasi shows the winter garden of Princess Ma thilds, that rendezvous of exotics from the vegetable and artistic world. There is a delicate atmosnoon, as Mr. John Smith, a resident of No. 195 Twentysecond street, New York, accompanied by his two children and his sister, Mrs. Matthew Maloney, were walking along the Morris and Essex railroad track, angured and the other grit thrown some distance, but fortunately uninjured. The dead bodies were removed to a convenient place and the injured woman properly cared for. Up to yesterday afternoon her condition was reported improving, and strong hopes are now entertained that she may recover. An inquest was held yesterday on the bodies of Mr. Smith and his daughter and a verific roturned of accidental death. The decasted genile man

LONG ISLAND.

The Supolk Ship Trade.—Shipbunding is exceedingly active on the eastern end of the island this scason, many carpenters having three and four small vessels in hand.

The New Cherene at Hunter's Point is rapidly approaching completion. It is a substantial frame building with brek foundation, and will seat a flant building with brek foundation, and will seat a flant theory rank, Many well known farmers say that

The Chors.—The wheat crop of Suffolk county is said to have been greatly damaged by the recent heavy rain, Many well known farmers say that

The Chors are the mystead Plains. A special

But, to return to the Paixis, there is a decided de-ly display of modern or antiques nailed on the dinion shall walls—every bouloir has tables, jarduseres, vases, what-nots, seats, stocks of pottery tablets mounted in precious wood. It is a difficult art, but one in which women can excel. Mime. Hugard, the wife of the famous landscape painter who decorated the Ecole des Mines, has a deserved reputation for the perfect drawing of her nyimphs. Dianas and foliage on deep fatian dishes. It is not only an art that requires a sure and steady hand at correct outline, but an uncerting eve for coloring, as not every kind of hardware can be painted with every color; It is an art, too, that must be proof avainst despair or disappointment, as accidents occur in the baking just as they do with a good housewile's crust. Colors may run fixe mils, or they may bilster, and weeks of indetatigable application can thus be lost. We will therefore look on an artist who has persevered in this branch and acquired celebrity in it as a morally strong individual. But more of potteries when the projected 'exshibition of fine arts' applied to industry will bring many valuable contributious forward to the expectant public.

I add a correct lest of Americans who have sent in works of art to this year's salon. The productions of many of them have been noticed in my preceding letters. Among the painters, A. Bierstadt, H. Bacon, F. A. Bradgeman, C. E. Dubois, Mass Gardiner, G. Healy, Howard Helmick, F. Johnson, H. A. Loop, Mss. Loop, E. May, F. Mayer, J. Niemayer, G. Owen, Robt. Whe, Miss Wilson, J. Ware, M. Ramsay, E. W. Lind. Among the sculptors, E. Allins, J. H. Haseline, J. Mazzara, H. Roberts. Among the architects, L. Dupre.

A number of Italian artists have formed a society of the many of them, J. May and the first and the many of them have been noticed in many ers, H. Gugier, H. May. Among the architects, L. Dupre.

A number of italian artists have formed a society at Turin, under the name of Aqua-Forte. They propose to publish annually an abun containing the aqua-for-fees they have collected through the year, and to settle the price of these productions for purchasers who are not members of the society. At the head of the promoters of this work are the Comte Marcello Panissera, the Comte Erneste do Sambuy, the Courte Angelo di Cervignasco, and the Duke Alfonso di Sartirana.

ROME.

The Pope on the Present Position-The Roman Catholic Church in Russia-The Action of the Coming Council-Spain Re-news Her Tribute to Rome-The Anniversary of the Pope's Coronation.

ROME, June 24, 1869. The recurrences of the Pope's election and coronation have afforded his Holmess the opportunity of delivering what would be considered in a secular government an official discourse and a declaration of policy. On Thursday last, the anniversary of his creation, Pius IX, replied in the following terms to the complimentary felicitations of the Sacred College, the Sepate and other civil and religious digni taries, congregated for that purpose in the Sala del Paramenti at the Vatican:-Having arrived at the conclusion of the twenty-third year of my Pontifigure it is my duty, before all, to thank the Lord who has sas'amed my frailty in the midst of such numerous and cruel trials. It is my duty to admire and bless the protection, full of wisdom, which He has granted to the Church. Doubtless He leaves her exposed to redoubtable tempests, but He sustains her at the same time, and raises up among Christians men animated by a holy courage to detend her rights. Finally, I address my thanks to the Sacred College and to all those who surround me, for the noble part which they take in the strug-gle and for the vows which you (Cardinal Patrizi spoke in the name of his eminent brethren) have inst expressed to me. The world is divided, as it were, into two societies;

one numerous, powerful, restless and agitated; the other less numerous, but calm and faithful. My very illustrious predecessor, St. Gregory the Great, compared these two societies to those formerly collected, the first in the plains of Sennaar, where men erected the Tower of Pride, but were confounded by God in their language and dispersed; the second at the Conaculum, on the day of Pentecost, where Peter and the Apostles and thousands of the faithful of divers nations all heard and understood one and the same language. Thus to-day we see revolution, with socialism in its suite, condemning and denying religion, morality and God Himself; and, on the other side, the true faithful, who, calm and firm in their faith, wait patiently for good principles resume their salutary empire and for the designs of God to be accomplished. Ah, if sovereigns adopted, these good principles how much more easy is would be for them to gover their people! How much good could they do to their people and to themselves! The inture is in the hands of God. As He has overthrown the first revolutionists, the demons, so he will overthrow these. And we can and ought to desire that the proud who persecute the church may be humbled and confounded. Meanwhile let us accomplish multifully our sacred duties to God. Eyo adem execuebrs, says the Psalmist, and let us render lim and relicity privileges morse of land whose we can extend our looks and our prayers over the whole Church. Al, how heavy are the evils which oppress this Church. What ruins, what tears everywhere! Perhaps at this moment, while I am speaking, a kingdom is deprived of its last bishop; he also thrown into prison or carried into exile. (At this allosion to the persecutions in Poland the Pope was painting artisted.) Certainty, God might permit that we ourselves should have to choomier the same fate roots and the dangers which we still make sacry might be stricken like the mystic plant of the Propher bushel. But the dangers which meace us are kept off by divine goodness, and that plant has the word of the Lord. I myoke the all powerful protection of God on the Sacred College, on the prelate, on this dear city and those who represent it (the Senate). I pray particularly for two sorts of persons—shose who are in tribulation, that God may come to their aid; and those, still more unfortunate, who he en his, that God may grant them victorious grants and the still protection of God on the body, falsehood for truin, and, who, stying from the path of justice, piunge into the forest full of roaring beasts. We to those who act mus. It is the sure loss of all good, May the Lord keep such a lot from you all, and may the, through the interession of May, bless you, as I desire, with all the force of my heart.

The reception of the Grand Duke Vladimir by the Pope, the presence of some infinential Russan diplomatists in Rome and increase visu of Count is sea of only a few days here, led to a supposition, which was circulated in several journals, that the Russan and Panal governments were on the point of re-estandsing amicale in several journals, that the Pope, the present and the rosen tribute of the days have been appropriate and the country of th

The abipping business "long shore continues surprisingly dull, there being hardly work enough for one-third the numdult, there being hardly work enough for one-third the number of shipwrights and calkers seeking it. In the neighborhood of the dry docks large groups of men are lounging all day walting for something to turn up, but the presentment of the entry books is not very encouraging for them. The mammoth sectional dry dock at Hoboken has been lifle for several weeks, and the great sectional dry dock near the foot of Ruigers silp is still empty. Some of the calkers have left the city to seak employment at her little ways of the right the city to seek employment at the little ways of the river towns up the Hudson, while others have gone to the small yards on the Sound, in many cases working at a reduction on the wages demanded in hurried times in New York.
